A mix of stage play, Hollywood re-enactment and historical lesson" as well as "a quality short film, period. - Film Threat

KEYE LUKE is an examination and celebration of the life and early career of Keye Luke, an artist, painter and pioneering actor most known for playing the original Kato in the 1940s Green Hornet decades before Bruce Lee, the All-American "Number One Son" in the popular Charlie Chan films of the 1930s, and Detective James Lee Wong in the Phantom of Chinatown (1940), the very first Film Noir to feature an Asian American lead detective character. With over 200 films/TV shows under his belt, Luke went on to star as Master Po in "Kung Fu", as Mr. Wing in the Gremlins films, and voiced characters such as Brak in the Hanna-Barbera cartoon Space Ghost (1966). His career also became "full circle" when he was asked to voice Charlie Chan in Hanna-Barbera's animated series "The Amazing Chan and the Chan Clan" (1972). The short film KEYE LUKE, which is a hybrid between the documentary and narrative film genres, focuses on the early life and work of Mr. Luke, as well as his family, friends and colleagues/collaborators during the 1930s-1940s.

The film is directed, written, produced and edited by Timothy Tau. Timothy Tau is an award-winning writer and filmmaker and was recently named by PolicyMic magazine as "6 Young Asian-American Filmmakers Who Are Shattering America's Asian Film Bias." His short story "The Understudy" won Grand Prize in the 2011 Hyphen Asian American Writer's Workshop Short Story Contest and is published in the 2011 Issue of Hyphen Magazine. Tau has directed, wrote and produced a number of short films and music videos for some of the leading artists in Asian American entertainment such as dumbfounded/Parker, Paul Kim, Megan Lee, The Fung Bros., CHOPS, and more, a number of which have amassed over 300k views and collectively over a million views on Youtube. KEYE LUKE has won a number of awards, including an Audience Award at the February Screening at the 2014 HollyShorts Film Festival and Best Original Score for the film's composer George Shaw at the 2013 Asians on Film Festival. Tau is currently enrolled in the UCLA School of Theater, Film and Television Professional Programs in both Screenwriting and TV Writing. Ella Yee Quan was born in Santa Barbara, California in 1926. Ella's grandfather came from China in the 1800's to Virginia City, Nevada where he opened a Chinese laundry, then later moved to Santa Barbara and opened a Chinese herb shop.

After high school, Ella went to nursing school for a year. She married Harry Quan. They moved to Los Angeles in 1946 where their son and daughter were born. She worked as a nurses' aide at Good Samaritan Hospital and as a typist for the Department of Water and Power in the 1950's.

In the late 1950's Ella returned to school as a part-time evening student; that was the beginning of her educational history: a Bachelor and Master's degree in Education and an Elementary and Adult Teaching Credential from California State University at Los Angeles; a Secondary and an Administrative Credential from Mount St. Mary's College and a Bilingual Cross Cultural Credential from the University of Southern California.

Ella's long and illustrious career in education began in 1964 and ended with her retirement in 1989. During those years she served as teacher, assistant principal, and principal in seven schools in the Los Angeles Unified School District, from Chinatown's Castelar School to Kenter Canyon Elementary in Brentwood. Of special interest was the K.E.Y.S. (Knowledge of English Yields Success) Project which was eventually adopted statewide. She developed bilingual materials for teaching English to non English-speaking Asian students of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Korean, and Samoan descent.
